Three Peculiarities

The superior qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla are due to three peculiarities, viz:

First—The combination of remedial agents used.

Second—The proportion in which they are mixed.

Third—The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

These are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla and are unlike any other. The result of these peculiarities is a medicine of unusual strength with effects cures hitherto unknown. A trial, or even a glance at the article, inspires confidence, because it bears unquestionable evidence of a thorough understanding on the part of those who originated it.

Unknown To Others

"My little girl was afflicted with scrofula. So virulent was the disease that her neck had been lanced ten times. At the time she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there was a very large bunch on her face. This we expected to open with the lancet; but to our surprise the bunch began to shrink, and now it has entirely disappeared. Toby is in good health, scores all gone, her appetite is good and she seems as well as any child."—William H. Conant, Lyndonville, N. H.

Attest: I live neighbor to Mr. and Mrs. Conant and have always known them. The above statement is true. Theodore Balch.

Scrofula

Hood's Sarsaparilla will cure, when in the power of medicine, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, General Debility, Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaint, Catarrh, Female Weaknesses, Cancerous Humors, Humors of the Face, Ringworm, Pimples, Syphilitic Affections, Ulcers, Sores, Tumors, Salt Rheum, all diseases arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood.

"Appetite poor, bowels all out of order, scrofulous sores on my face and neck. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and with three bottles my sores healed, and I am in business again."—J. Ambers, Chicago, Ill.

Purify Your Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla will purify your blood, if taken according to directions. If you have a scrofulous condition of the blood, which will manifest itself in Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Blood Poisons, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Kidney disease and all diseases caused by impure blood, we will guarantee that Hood's Sarsaparilla, when faithfully taken, will cure you. Do not delay. A few bottles will work wonderful cures in such cases.

STATE NEWS

Androscoggin

Wednesday forenoon a man fairly dressed stepped into John N. Woodcock's office, in Lewiston, and, giving his name as said he wanted to pay a bill of about $7 for coal. He had lived in Lewiston in 1873, and the bill was fourteen years old. He said that he had been a long time in state prison, and also had served a term in a prison in Canada. The greater part of his life since 1871 has been spent in jail and prison. Most of it was for the crime of larceny, caused by intemperance. He had a numerous common book in his pocket which contained the names of parties from whom he had stolen. One of them read, "Stolen from Daniel Graham one umbrella." He said that he had made up his mind to pay every such debt if he ever got to be free from conscience.

Sunday evening the telephone of A. J. Welch & Son, in their undertaking room, in Portland, caught fire from the electric current, and was nearly ruined. If it had been later the store would probably have been set on fire, and so could have known.

Mr. H. L. Davis is making a large book for the Portland Fish Exchange, in which will be recorded the arrivals of the fishing vessels with their fares. On Saturday the Exchange reports the schooners Nellie Howe, of Gloucester, and Lewis E. Rose, of Boothbay, arrived at New York with 700 barrels of mackerel respectively. The two boats were lost in the recent gales. The mackerel bring but $3 per barrel, as they are small.

Boots are entered Hodgdon Bros.' shoe factory in Yarmouth, Friday evening, by breaking in a rear window, and cut with a cold-chisel a hole four inches square through the door of the safe, but they were frightened away before securing any plunder.

The Fitch estate, so called, situated on Congress street, Portland, has a frontage of 128½ feet, and is bounded on the east by the land that leads to Fernald & Sawyer's livery stable, and on the west, by another lane. The property has no alien of 22,410 square feet and is considered one of the finest locations in the city. It has been [illegible] by W. E. Fuller, Esq., formerly of Phillips, now a prominent

The Wool Tariff.

The performance of the Democratic politicians in regard to the wool tariff is one of the most striking illustrations of the art of statesmanship that may be expected from that remarkable party. When the entire tariff system was revised in 1883 with a general reduction of duties, the rates of tariff on wools and on woolen manufactured goods was lowered according to a ratio agreed upon, so as to make the reduction fall equally upon the wool grower and manufacturer. This ratio was carefully fixed after investigation by experts as fair to the two interests principally concerned. After the bill was passed the Western wool growers complained that the duty on wool had been reduced more in proportion than that on manufactured woolens, and in Ohio the Democrats went before the farmers denouncing the Republicans as responsible for the reduction of the duty, and claiming that the Democrats opposed it. This false assertion was supported by the citing of the list of votes in Congress thus showing the Democrats voting "No" on one of the phases of the measure, to reduce the wool duties, when they really opposed, that measure because it failed to make so much reduction as they desired. The Democratic stump speakers, however, made a great pretence of sympathy with the wool growers in Ohio, and promised that one of the first acts of a Democratic Congress would be the restoration of the wool duties.

On Monday of last week, Mr. Converse of Ohio, sought to redeem his promise by asking a suspension of the rules in the House in order to pass an act restoring the duties on wool to the rates existing prior to the revision of 1883. The demagogical character of this proposition was obvious as it proposed to arbitrarily increase the duties on wool without at all increasing the compensatory duties on woolen goods. The result, therefore, would be equivalent to just so much reduction of the protection afforded woolen manufactures. By increasing the duty on the material used in woolen manufactures without an equivalent increase in the duties on the goods, there would be manifestly a discrimination against our own manufactures to that extent, and the result would be disastrous not only to the manufacturers but to the wool growers themselves by imparting or destroying the home market which is their main reliance. In the State of Maine, for instance, between three and four million dollars worth of wool is manufactured every year, and even with the present adjustment of the duties the woolen mills are having a close fight. If the duty on the wool they consume should be materially increased without any increase in the protective duty upon the foreign woolen manufactures that compete with them, it is plain that our mill owners would be forced to the wall, and wide-spread disaster would follow the closing of our home factories.

The proposition was simply a political fetch, a trick to deceive the publicking and to keep up the pretence of special sympathy for the wool grower which was so loudly proclaimed by the Democrats in Ohio last year. The Democracy has not only failed to redeem its promise to restore the wool tariff, but it has made the matter so transparent that everybody can now see through it.

A Word Explanitory.

It is always the intention of the WHIG to treat all matters candidly and fairly, and it is in accordance with this purpose that we make the following explanation: In Monday evening's Commercial there appeared the form of a printed circular sent out by the Adrian (Mich.) Times asking certain questions relative to the prohibitory law, and also a number of answers credited to the Whig. As this circular which it seems had been sent to various papers throughout the State, had not reached the editor of the Whig, who has invariably attended to all matters of this kind, but who in fact in the present instance had no knowledge whatever of the existence of such a circular, we at once pronounced those answers credited to this paper a fraud. Since writing that article, however, we find on investigation that the publisher of the Whig, who has now been out of town for several days, did receive such a circular and did authorize the assignment of the firm to answer said questions.

WASHINGTON, April 13. The friends of the President and those who favor him as the Republican nominee at the head of the party at Chicago have been much depressed in the strength developed within the last few days in favor of Mr. Blaine in the State of New York. In 1880 Mr. Blaine received only seventeen votes out of the seventy votes of the New York delegation. Of the fifty-four delegates to Chicago, two of the district delegates have been elected, and it is claimed that twenty-six votes will go to Blaine, leaving only twenty-eight votes for Arthur, while the remaining votes are doubtful. Two of the district conventions have already been held, and in each of them the Blaine delegates have been elected by a majority of two to one. The Arthur men are pledged to support Mr. Blaine if he is taken from the race. Compared with 1880 only 23 out of the 36 Arthur delegates from Missouri are claimed for Arthur, while 13 votes are claimed for Blaine, including five votes from Missouri, which were cast for Arthur in 1880. Of the 46 votes from Pennsylvania in 1880 only 23 but of the 46 Arthur delegates from that State are claimed for Arthur, while 23

Evidences of Blaine's Popularity.

HIS STRENGTH IN NEW YORK A SURPRISE TO SOME—HIS NOMINATION DISCUSSED AT THE CAPITAL.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.)

WASHINGTON, April 13. The friends of the President and those who favor his aspirations to a nomination at the hands of the next Chicago convention have watched with surprised interest the strength developed within the last few days, in Mr. Blaine, the State of New York. In 1880 Mr. Blaine received only seventeen out of the seventy votes of the New York delegation. Of the thirty-four delegates elected to Chicago by their conventions and to plant only eleven of the thirty-four delegates to Chicago. Ten of the twenty-six votes will go to Blaine, probably on the first ballot, while Mr. Arthur can show only six in his favor. Four of the remaining votes are doubtful and two are to be made the subject of a contest before the National Convention and will likely be decided in favor of Mr. Blaine.

The result of the Conventions, especially those in the city of Brooklyn, are a source of disappointment to the President, who, it is said, confidently expected that the result in Kings would, to a certain extent, counterbalance the overwhelming majority of the State against him. The Brooklyn delegation, which so far have pledged its support to Mr. Blaine, when it is taken into consideration that in 1880 only 23 out of the 58 men composing the Kings County delegation voted for Blaine, and that the full membership of that State delegation was composed of men from Missouri, which precedes it in 1880 cast its vote solidly for Garfield, and which, according to the Globe-Democrat of St. Louis, was the first State to have been heard from after the nomination of Garfield, Edmunds, Illinois, which, it is expected would send a solid delegation to the convention in favor of Blaine, will probably be divided. Six of the votes from the city of Chicago elected are known to be unfriendly to Blaine, but are instructed to vote for him on the first ballot. In Mississippi, which furnishes 40 votes in the Chicago convention, the delegates are instructed for Blaine. In Alabama, which will have 42 votes, 22 delegates are instructed for Blaine's support by the State Convention, which furnishes 44 votes, 30 votes from Pennsylvania, 30 votes from Ohio and 19 votes from Missouri on the first ballot—a total of at least 110 votes, where there had only been 93 in 1880. The number of delegates this year is somewhat greater than in 1880, but the does not injure him. He is the one candidate for whom there is any popular enthusiasm, and is the strongest man who will be nominated on the first ballot by an overwhelming majority.

The discouraging reports from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, which have been sent to Washington by the Administration leaders, have had the effect to stimulate the friends of Mr. Blaine to renewed activity, and the result has been a surprise to the Administration leaders. The Blaine men, who were instructed by the Republican State Convention of Pennsylvania, assembled in Harrisburg on Tuesday, and organized a delegation to attend the Chicago Convention. The Blaine men, who were instructed by the Republican State Convention of Illinois, assembled in Springfield on Wednesday, and organized a delegation to attend the Chicago Convention. The Attorney General states that this question whether there now exists a vacancy in that office is a question of law which has been decided by the U. S. District Court in the negative.

House.

In the expectation that the initial fight over the Morrison tariff bill would take place to-day the members of the Republican and Democratic sides, who have the duty of securing pairs for absentees were kept busy this morning in seeing that the vote of no man should be wanted, and that all the pairs should contain the names of an active and an inactive opponent of the measure.

On motion of Mr. Oats of Alabama, the Senate bill was passed to transfer the endowment of the university of Alabama from the public lands in that State.

The House resolved into Committee of the Whole, and Mr. Morrison called up his tariff bill, but Mr. Kelton, of Conn., objected to the consideration of the bill. The objection was reported but by a vote of 140 yeas to 138 nays the committee decided to consider the measure.

Mr. Morrison opened the debate in support of the bill. He described the financial condition of the country, stated the estimated surplus of the revenues over the expenditures and dwelt on the necessity of reducing taxation. To fail to reduce taxation and relieve the people would be a flagrant disregard of public duty. The pending bill might not be all that was required, but it was an advance forward, a promise of more complete tariff reform. Such reciprocal adjustment of the tariff laws were not before us to attain this, at the present session. He would create no surprise that in the opinion of the majority of the Ways and Means Committee the measures were not sufficiently harmonious to secure approval. They found in it, to merit because it proposed to reduce all the articles named. Horizontal reduction might not be the best, but none other was now practicable. The protectionists opposed it not because it was horizontal reduction, but because it was a reduction at all.

Mr. Kelly of Pennsylvania, made the opening speech in opposition to the bill. He did not believe in any compelling of goods to reduce any of the American industries. The evil was, not that the goods were not cheap enough, or that America could not produce them. The truth to be considered by all men was that the power of production in the world over had out run the power of consumption, and that all markets were overstocked, and in every line skilled and industrious people had been idle for a large portion of recent years.

Nihilism in Russia, socialism in Germany, socialism and nihilism in the border regions of Austria, communism in France, the socialism which would prevent every question that the British parliament would consider during the present session, told the story in those great countries. Idleness, want, misery in every industrial centre. He then proceeded to give chapters from the terrible lives of the industrial classes of England, as learned by him during three months visit to Merry England. Prosperous free trade England.

In order to show the fearful condition of the working people in that country, and said the proposition now made was that the United States should enter the race with the world for the prizes which had led to such terrible results in England.

There was nothing of sacrifice value in England as the working man or woman. In one town he had seen a woman making lace cloths, built yet the gentleman from Kentucky (Carlisle) was determined to Congress every year because he advocated placing lace cloths on the free list. Women could realize 50 or 60 cents a week for making lace cloths. God forbid that any Kentucky woman must ever work at such miserable employment for such starvation prices. He believed that the free trade Democracy of the country, as represented on this floor, was in favor of free raw materials. Under the present tariff every element of raw material which could be discovered was already on the free list.

The pending bill put 20 or 30 articles on the free list but not one of them was in reality raw material. In the race for cheapness production left prosperous countries and found its way to the most oppressed. The United States had entered on the work of building manufactures. Every reduction in wages diminished the power of the masses to consume and magnified the evil from which the people of the whole industrial world were now suffering. This evil could not be mitigated by a 20 per cent. reduction in the tariff, now to fight in a few many articles which should be produced in the United States, merely a blow at the agricultural interest.

He could see but two means by which the product could be increased with a three months gambling in the future. Stop all importation of cheap labor, send back to whatever country they came from, men or women who had signed contracts in foreign lands or ship board to work at lower wages than the wages of American labor (applause); see that wages were kept so high that the public schools might be well sustained and children reasonably well educated; let not the American woman become degraded; protect the American motherhood against the degradation of becoming the drudges of men in the glass works, iron forges and rolling mills, if necessary by declaring eight hours the longest period in the twenty-four that men or adultery may run.

Let the country be isolated. It was unlike any other. It was not a monarchy or empire. It was a free republic, every human being belonging to which was a citizen with the right of a free man and with the duty before him of helping maintain a government which could only live as long as virtue, intelligence and independent character of its citizens, and this it could not do if it was to begin an unholy race for the cheap and nasty under the teachings of illiteracy, science. (Applause on the Republican side.)

After a speech by Mr. Mills, of Texas in favor of the bill, the House adjourned.

BUSINESS MATTERS.

The Vermont National Bank.

ST. ALBANS, April 15. Receiver Hendee has called another point in behalf of the Vermont National Bank depositors. Mowbray & Robinson, a firm of wealthy, well established stock in the Montreal, Portland and Boston railroads to the amount of 50,000 shares, more than two-thirds of the entire stock. The receiver succeeded in postponing the sale till to-day and in the meantime has been at work to have the stock bought in the interest of the bank so as to aid him in selling the Montreal, Portland and Boston bonds, which the bank holds among its assets. This was accomplished, the stock being purchased in the interest of the Vermont National Bank. This is regarded as a strong point gained, giving the bank a valuable interest in the Montreal, Portland and Boston property.

The business men held an informal meeting last evening concerning the organization of a new bank here and a strong effort will be made at once to start one with a capital of $100,000, the stock to be held by people in this vicinity.

Household Hints.

When making layer cake which is to have a filling of fresh fruit, or one of any kind which ought not to be put in until it is time to serve it, it should be taken from the tin in which it is baked and be placed on the tins turned upside down. Take this precaution to heat these tins if they have cooled, in order to prevent the cake's falling.

Delicious filling for a layer cake is made of bananas, sliced thin, with powdered sugar sprinkled over them. The bananas should not be prepared until almost tea-time, for they become discolored if they are perfectly ripe and allowed to stand long. Another way to prepare a filling is to chop some pineapple very fine, and put half pineapple, and half banana together; put a layer of bananas on the cake, then cover this with the chopped pineapple and sugar.

A nice dish for dessert is made by peeling some tart apples, and removing the cores, leaving the apples whole; then put apples in water enough to completely cover them, and when soft so that you can pierce them easily, clear through with a slender broad splint; lift them out of the water, and let them drain while you consider. Then to the water in which the apples were boiled add sugar enough to sweeten it well; let this come to a boil, then put the apples in, and let them come to a boil; take them out again and place them in a dish. To the hot syrup add an ounce of gelatine dissolved in a pint of cold water. Let this come to a boil, then pour over the apples. The day after they are cooked these are ready for the table. If a small quantity only is made, put it into the dish in which it is to be sent to the table, or put it into a mould, and turn it out on a platter. Serve with cream if possible.

"L. R." asks for a receipt for "Apple Fruth," which she says she knew before fresh fruit can be procured. Take one can of peaches, one can of apricots, or plums, or greengages, six oranges or limes, and one dozen bananas; chop the fruit (in small bits, and the juice of the lemons and oranges, and part of the peaches) over this to your taste. At least two pounds of sugar will be required. Slice the bananas and put them in last. One authority advises that a gallon of cream be added to this, and that it be frozen like ice cream. Another says add a little water to help dissolve the sugar, and let this stand for two days in a cool room then serve with cake.

Here is a good receipt for a clam chowder, one which suits the taste of a great many people: Take a small piece of pork and cut it in squares about an inch each way; place them on the bottom of a kettle, then chop your clams fine and put a layer over the pork, then put a layer of potatoes pared and cut in pieces; cut a medium sized potato in four pieces, then put a layer of whole crackers over this, but pepper and salt on this layer, so that not only it but the layers underneath will get the benefit, of it also, and go on in this way putting alternate layers until you have enough for your dinner, the topmost layer should be of cracker, well seasoned. Over all this pour boiling water; keep pouring until you are sure that the crackers have soaked up enough water to moisten them, and until the water rises above this upper layer of crackers. Boil for three-quarters of an hour, then the potatoes will surely be done. A few minutes before you wish to serve the chowder stir two or three tablespoonfuls of flour in a pint of sweet milk, pour this over the chowder, let it come to a boil, and it is ready for the table. In the matter of seasoning the chowder cooks differ, and each family must settle for itself the question whether onions should be used or not. If you like it you will consider it an indispensable addition, and if you do not it would spoil the chowder. If you elect to use it you must put it in, in one layer about midway in the kettle, or put a few thin slices in each layer of potatoes.

Many people who like the various dishes made of dried codfish do not like fish as often as they otherwise would, because they object strongly to the odor given off by the fish when kept in the store-room. Fish odor may be done away with by pursuing this course. Buy the strips of codfish, the English-cured is preferred by many cooks, remove all skin and bones from it. Then put the pieces of fish into glass fruit-jars, screw the covers on, and the odor will be perceptible. The fish will not absorb any the moisture, and will be in convenient form to use at any time.

The wash boiler should always be carefully dried, and if there is the least tendency to rust, rub the inside with a little lard.

Suppose that you have some pieces of cold roast beef that you do not know how to use to good advantage, that some bits of cold boiled mutton was left over from dinner; chop them very fine, removing all gristle or anything that is not appetizing to munch up, and if this chopped meat add a teaspoonful of salt, a quarter of a small onion, half a teaspoonful of black pepper, a pinch of thyme, and a little chopped parsley rubbed into it. Beat one egg, and add to bind the bits together, and use a little soup stock to moisten them, roll in shape of flat cakes, dip in egg and very fine cracker or bread crumbs, and fry in hot lard. Have the lard boiling when the croquettes are dropped into it, then they will keep their shape as they become crisp on the outside at once.

To give an even and most satisfactory brown to the top of a scalloped oysters have the crackers that form the top layer rolled to fine as to be almost like flour; then wet them all over with a little milk; do not put enough on so that they will be literally wet through with it, but go over them lightly as if you were glazing the top. Repeated experiments have convinced me that this is much better than to put much butter on the top layer of cracker, put plenty of it on the oysters just under the cracker crumb.

Bread, biscuit, rolls, and the crust of pies are all greatly improved in flavor and color if they are lightly brushed over with milk just before they are put into the oven. A little sugar dissolved in the milk is an addition also.

Receipt for Spanish buns. The following rule is said to be a very worthy one: Beat two cups of sugar with three-fourths of a cup of butter until light, then add four well beaten eggs, half a cup of sweet milk and half a cup of sweet lard, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, two tablespoonfuls of best molasses, one cup of well washed English currants, one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream of tartar; use enough sifted flour to make a dough of the consistency of ginger-bread dough; bake in a shallow pan. The buns may be glazed by drawing the pan close to the oven door, when it is about half done, and rubbing it lightly and quickly over with a little molasses and milk well mixed together; apply this with a soft cloth. Another way is to make an icing of the whites of an egg, a little sugar, and half a teaspoonful of cinnamon, and still another way is, the moment the cake is taken from the oven, to sprinkle powdered sugar over it.

Excellent soft gingerbread is made of one cup of sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of sour cream, one cup of New Orleans molasses, four cups of sifted flour, one tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot water, one tablespoonful of ginger, three well-beaten eggs; the rind grated of one lemon. Raisins may be added if you please.

To provide endless subject of study for your children, take a one-quart glass fruit can, get it nearly full of pond water; then let them observe the forms of life, both of plants and of insects, which flourish there. Small magnifying glasses and tumblers that will be appreciated.

To use pieces of cold boiled ham that are too small for the table, chop them fine, line a salad dish with lettuce leaves, season the chopped ham with pepper, a little mustard, and then make a tomato dressing: take one pint of tomato juice, strain it, thicken it by adding one tablespoonful of arrowroot, mixed with a little of the cold juice; then stir it into the other and let it boil for two or three minutes; add a little butter and pepper, and pour over the ham. Serve hot or cold.

Minced olives are relished by many, and are considered a delectable addition to salad of any kind.

MISS CONDE will receive applications for lessons in Vocal Music and the Guitar, on Thursday afternoons, Friday and Saturdays, at 32 Central Street. If agreeable to parents.

Advertising Chestnuts!!

It has become so common to write the initial lines of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

Then run it into some miserable mud that will avoid all such.

And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

To induce people

To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never be without them.

The Remedy as favorably noticed by all the papers,

Religious and secular, is

Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

And ability,

In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.

DIT AND DIT.

So!

She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for 3 years,

The doctors doing her no good;

And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.

Indeed! Indeed!

How thankful we should be for that medicine.

A DAUGHTER'S HEART.

Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery.

From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic troubles and Nervous debility.

Under the care of the best physicians,

Who gave her disease various names,

But no relief.

And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it.—The Parents.

FATHER IS GETTING WELL.

My daughters say,

How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.

He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable.

And we are so glad you used your Bitters.

Full particulars in our pamphlet, which we desire to send free by mail to every one. The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package, or six packages for $5, or will be sent free by mail on receipt of the money, by addressing THE CRAY MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, New York.
